I. Computer and Internet Use

LRC computing resources are available to members of the Indian Bible College campus community. The use of these resources is intended to aid in the completion of academic requirements and to promote scholarship and academic research. Priority for the use of computing resources in the LRC is in providing access to information resources that support the learning, scholarship, and research of students and faculty.

The Library reserves the right to monitor and check computers for inappropriate use.

When using the Library computer resources please do not

- Monopolize computer resources (for example, use more than one computer at a time or spend an inordinate amount of time on a computer).
- Install software unless specifically approved by LRC staff.
- Attempt to bypass system restrictions or tamper with system files or applications.
- Attempt to disrupt the integrity of the computer or network.
- Violate federal or state laws or IBC regulations and policies.
- Waste or overload computer resources.
- Damage or deface any computer hardware or software.
- Violate copyright or other laws.
- Use accounts other than your own to access computing resources.

By using the LRC's electronic resources, you agree to assume personal responsibility for their appropriate use.

Use of the LRC's computers is a privilege. The LRC reserves the right to deny access to patrons who have not complied with this computer Use Policy.
